

Call for Nominations for the British Psychological Society
Cognitive Psychology Undergraduate Project Prize

The Undergraduate Project Prize recognises outstanding research conducted by undergraduate students in the area of Cognitive Psychology. Eligible projects should report novel observations and provide theoretical insights into cognition. The work must have been conducted in the UK.

Projects must be nominated by supervisors. An electronic copy of the project abstract should be submitted, along with a supporting statement of not more than 500 words from the research supervisor. It is the responsibility of the supervisor to ensure that the student consents to their work being considered for the prize. There should be no more than one submission from a psychology department.

Nominated projects will be considered by the Award Panel, comprising a subgroup of the Cognitive Psychology Section Committee in consultation with expert assessors, if necessary. The winner of the prize will be invited to present a poster at the Annual Cognitive Section Conference, which in 2017 will be organised and hosted by Newcastle University and will take place 30th August – 1st September. Conference registration will also be offered free of charge to the prize winner. It is the responsibility of the supervisor to ensure that the student is available to present the poster at the conference.

Nominations for the award should be sent to Dr Sue Sherman at S.M.Sherman@keele.ac.uk

The closing date for nominations is Friday 30th June.
